In Nashville, Tenn., 5,000,000 cigars are annually manufactured.

Mississippi is the only State in the Union without a national bank.

Statistics show that women commit suicide most frequently on Sunday.

Hail as "large as guinea's eggs" has been falling in Barbour county, Alabama.

Three Butler county (Alabama) boys in one day's hunt killed fourteen foxes.

A man at Grenada, Miss., claims to have found $2,000 by following the dictates of a dream.

A murder trial was interrupted at Durango, Col., by the reappearance of the man believed to have been killed.

From Kentucky to Florida stretches a nearly continuous forest, which has scarcely been touched by the lumbermen.

The procession at the funeral of a Mexican infant which died at Rio Rio, Texas, marched to the music of a fiddle and accordion.

There are in England and Wales 10,000 women who are classed as habitual drunkards. The number of men in the same category is 27,878.

A dying Paris woman requested that none of her female friends be allowed to attend her funeral. She said they would gossip about the fashions with the coffin before them.

Some small Missouri towns are trying high license fees for saloons. At Maysville the figure is $1,000, and the eight saloons have paid it, while other towns demand $500 or $250.

Thirteen hundred pounds of glycine exploded in a magazine at Kinnz Junction, Pa., recently, apparently from spontaneous combustion. A forest covering nearly three acres was torn to splinters.

It is said that the railroad officials in Austria employ upward of three thousand women. They receive a salary of from $5 to $30 per month. They are invariably the near relatives of dead or active male employees of the roads.

The Kata Kana syllabary, made up of forty-eight characters, is the simplest form of Japanese written language, and is used in telegraphing. Messages can be sent in the character chequer in Japan that they could be sent in New England in 1876.

Two women called on a Maine dentist simultaneously, one to have all her teeth extracted and the other only three. The dentist mistakenly put the latter under the influence of ether and rendered her unconscious. A jury will try to estimate the damage.

A boat, destined to be propelled solely by electricity, has been completed in France. The owner, M. T. B. Dubouché, expects to use it at Boulogne, and to cross from there to Dover, in company with a friend. The boat is about sixteen feet long, by about four and a half feet wide.

Glasgow, Scotland, is the second city, in point of population, of Great Britain, having 750,000. It is upwards of 144 miles of public streets, the largest ship yards and the largest chemical works in the world, and two chimneys—one 450 and the second 400—which are unequalled in height by any ever built.

An innocent-looking young servant-girl kept her employer's family in a fright for six months, at Norwich, Conn., by ringing the door-bell and rapping on the window at unreasonable hours. They were sure that a ghost was about, and it was only after watching for twelve nights that a detective solved the mystery.

A young man in Grayson county, Virginia, recently, while working in a field of new ground, struck a bonanza in digging up $1,000 in silver coin and $353 in gold, supposed to have been hidden by some one during the war—a part of that, perhaps, said to have been lost from the Confederate money bags when his army went up in 1865.

Germany has 3,350 co-operative associations, of which 1,815 are for credit societies, people's banks, &c.; 674 industrial societies, 615 stores for the sale of goods and 36 building societies. As far as can be learned the banks are the most profitable, next to the co-operative stores. The industrial associations are not very prosperous.

A German manufacturer has succeeded in producing serviceable face-masks of mica, for the protection of metal and glass melters, stone masons, and other workmen exposed to heat, dust and noxious vapors. These masks allow the eyes to be turned in any direction, and there is space enough for spectacles in case the eyesight is defective.

Some engineers of Dundee, Scotland, have tried with success a new gun for throwing a line to a wrecked vessel. The gun is about two feet in length, and has a bore of two and a half inches in diameter. The cord is coiled in the form of a coil and put inside a steel cylinder, which is fired out of the gun, leaving the line streaming behind it. Two ounces of gunpowder carried the end of the line at least four hundred yards.

A heading merchant of Louisville, Kentucky, refused to buy a seal-skin squire for his daughter. The next day, she left the house, and when night came she did not return. For two weeks all efforts to discover her were unavailing, but the detectives employed in the case at length learned that she was employed as a domestic servant, under an assumed name. She refused to return home until her father promised to get her the squire.

It is not safe to perform yourself without weighing the consequences beforehand. In 1733, one De Montgolfier, an engineer, was bound at a street corner in Paris calling to the crowd for help. They came up and found him standing over the body of a M. Lescaudier, a well-known architect, sword-fighter. He stated that he had been assailed by the dead man, and had slain him in self-defense. His statement was credited till his mistress, who was Miss Lescaudier herself, was heard to tell friends that Lescaudier had become jealous, and been put out of the way by her lover to save trouble. Upon this poor Montgolfier was arrested, confined in jail for two years, and then executed.

He really had killed Lescaudier in self-defense, but finding that this would not be believed, he determined to revenge himself upon his heartless persecutor, who had really accused him to make way for a new lover, so he denounced her as his accomplice. The woman was confronted with him at the foot of the scaffold, where he persisted in his accusation. She was remarkably handsome, and she tried the effect of her charms on her judges, but without avail. She was sentenced to die, and was hanged on the Place de Greve.

A month afterward, the execution of one Dufrenoy, a magistrate of La Marche, took place. This man had, in a fit of spite, changed a merchant named Roy, who was dunning him for a bill, with inciting a number of soldiers of the guard to murder him. He afterward attempted to withdraw the indictment, but it was too late, and he was called upon to prove his allegations. Dufrenoy paid false witnesses to corroborate his charges, and in order to overcome their scruples, he persuaded them that the prisoner was in no danger of capital punishment. When the fourth witness came forward, the unfortunate Roy, appalled by the evidence, exclaimed:

"What have I done to you that you should bring me to the scaffold? I do not even know you, and I never saw you before!"

The witness, who was a painter, answered:

"What! To the scaffold? I was not aware that the consequences were so serious."

These words excited suspicion. The man was sharply cross-examined, and the whole truth came out. The three other false witnesses were immediately arrested, their trial was soon concluded, and, after being tortured, they were broken on the wheel with the man who had deceived them.—N. Y. Dispatch.

SETTING THE THAMES ON FIRE.

The petroleum fire at London recently affords the latest proof that "to set the Thames on fire" is by no means beyond the power of modern possibilities. A warehouse containing three thousand keels of petroleum caught fire. About eight hundred keels were removed. The rest burned or burst. The contents of the latter filled the gutters "thick as deep," and flooded the drains with a river of fire, which every now and then burst up through the sewer traps, to the great consternation of the inhabitants. According to the latest accounts, the fire seems to be burning, but it is draining off into the river, where the quantity of oil is not sufficient to blaze on the surface of the water. The fire gives a sufficient quantity of petroleum, and the Thames is now a river of oil, and is now burning on the surface of the water. Pumping water on a petroleum fire, unless in enormous quantities, only increases the intensity, for it converts the dripping liquid into rapidly on its surface of destruction. A few more fires like that of London, and every one will be demanding that the new Russian invention should be universally employed, by which petroleum is converted into a solid substance dissolving in vinegar, which will not explode and melts as slowly and can be stored as safely as tallow.—Pitt Mail Gazette.

T. T. HAYDOCK, WHOLESALE, Carriage Manufacturer, Cor. Plum and 19th Sts., CINCINNATI, OHIO.

This firm is now in its sixth year of existence, and the rapid and permanent growth it has made is something unprecedented in the history of carriage building. Its popularity and growth have been accomplished, not by any special effort at "drumming" the trade, but by the excellence of the work produced, and by the low price at which this work has been sold. Another great feature of its success is in the style of the work produced. It is too often the case that in low priced work the style is correspondingly low or common in appearance. But all goods manufactured by T. T. Haydock, are made in a stylish and artistic manner, thus adding beauty to quality. This firm does not build the lowest grade, nor the lowest priced work in the market by any means, but is making a specialty of a medium grade full leather top buggy at a very low price for the quality; and is offering special inducements to the trade to buy in large quantities. Send for Catalogue and Wholesale Price List, by addressing
